

ART 143: Natural Science Illustration

Credits 5

Study and practice of techniques and methods used in commercial illustration projects, with subjects and applications related to the Natural Sciences. Using research and observation of specimens, the course provides concentrated practice on a variety of media and techniques, including digital media, in order to create effective imagery for visual communication.